Company Description:

Educational Sustainable Development (ESD) is becoming increasingly important to educators the world over, and one in which the UK offers significant expertise. On the stand you will be able to learn more about the UK's approach to ESD, its range of stakeholders, and the expertise they can offer.

The teaching resources on display either:

- support teachers with curriculum related materials, for example in science or geography
- are manufactured from sustainably sourced materials
- have little or no environmental impact when used, for example they may be solar powered

All the products are available for distribution overseas. A brochure detailing the suppliers is available from the stand, as is a DVD on the UK's approach to ESD.
